HUNNER'S BOLD MOVE.

State Treasurer Hunner has caused considerable trouble to the backs of democratic platform builders. Now that he is safely installed he has changed his attitude regarding the state trust funds entirely. He now declares that he will deposit them wherever he chooses, and that it is none of the public's business as long as they are returned at the end of two years.

To those who listened to Mr. Hunner's ante-election promise this declaration has come as a severe shock. One of the strong points made by the democrats during the campaign was that the state treasurer had always deposited state moneys in banks and taken the interest therefrom. It was pledged that in case the democrats came into power this would be done away with and the money would be kept safely housed in the state vaults. Mr. Hunner seems to have forgotten about this. Suite are to be brought against former treasurers to compel them to return the interest money collected by them. Should the decisions of the courts compel them to do so Treasurer Hunner will also turn over his interest money. If they don't, however, Mr. Hunner will be at liberty to pocket about $40,000.

Reports from Kansas show that the winter wheat crop is in a fine condition. Evidently the Hessian fly has gone out of business and given up a bad job. The fact is, the creature started in too late. There is no use putting off operations till the snow begins to fly, if it is really hoped to accomplish anything. It will be a matter for congratulation if the Hessian fly has been permanently discouraged by his experience this winter.

Lawyers are bombarding congress in opposition to a national bankruptcy law, saying that it would precipitate a new series of business failures. The public is left in the dark as to what "business" would be effected. Under the present order of things, the lawyers take the kernel, the creditors the husks. A uniform national system of dealing with business failures would doubtless affect this division of the spoils.

"Merely a ballot reform law"—with the accent on the "merely" is the way one of the new democratic state officers expresses his contempt for ballot reform. There have been persons so afflicted with moral and intellectual strabismus as to speak of the top and crown of creation as "mere man."

Bo-ton and New York are in a position to lose the Indian question very philanthropically. It is a good many years since the red man was driven from those neighborhoods by the rule of the uncompromising forefather, who had no sticky nonsense in his composition.

Vast waves of regret well up from the national heart because the parasites who have fastened on Indian fodder for years were conspicuous by the absence from among the dead or wounded in the recent Indian engagements. They did not go to the front to fight, but for the money in sight.

The state of Nebraska has three sets of state officers and the State of Maine two sets of state officers, all determined to run things. The Milwaukee Sentinel remarks that Wisconsin manages to get along with the democratic state committee in charge of everything in sight.

Milwaukee Sentinel—The windmills are all at it—legislatures going it in nine-tenths of the states of our glorious republic, and all the ill the human race endures are soon to be wiped out by an act to make everybody good, comfortable and happy.

A trifle late but none the less fitting, is the Omaha Bee's remark: "The democracy is installed in power in Wisconsin, for the first time in eighteen years, and Peck's Sun is in the ascendant."

PALPITATION OF THE HEART, NERVOUSNESS, tremblings, nervous headache, cold hands and feet, pain in the back, and all other forms of weakness are relieved by Carter's Iron Pills, made especially for the blood, nerves and complexion.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria. When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria. When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria. When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

Hostile Still Burning Buildings Near Pine Ridge Agency.

PINE RIDGE AGENCY, S. D., via Rushville, Neb., Jan. 10.—Hostilities began their devilment Friday morning by burning the cabins four miles north of the agency. Three columns of dense smoke in the north show where the fires are raging. It is said that Young-Man-A-Fraid-of-His-Horses' cabin is among the others burned. Hostile scouts can be seen in the distance through powerful glasses.

PINE RIDGE, S. D., Jan. 10.—Thursday afternoon all the commands in the field were ordered to march three to six miles nearer the hostiles, and late at night the order was put into effect. This, of course, attracted the attention of the Indians. At intervals of two or three days the cordon will be drawn more tightly about the hostiles until they agree to come in peaceably or be whipped into submission. It is believed that they propose either to surrender and retain their arms or die fighting. This is borne out by the fact that the majority of those who have come in are squaws and children, who desire to get out of the way. Some braves come in occasionally, domesticated by the allied friendlies and at the same time retain the hostility which impelled them to flee from the agency.

The coming of Red Cloud is variously interpreted and many doubt his professed friendship. It is pointed out that he could not have stolen away from the hostiles if they desired to keep him. No one can tell what the Indians may attempt to do under cover of darkness. That they have contemplated and still contemplate an attack upon the agency is believed by many well-informed people. That they are only awaiting an opportunity is also well known. Red Cloud is living in his own house in the midst of the allied friendlies, and a signal from the hostiles it is believed that he will take command of the friendlies and the agency could then be attacked from all sides. There are now less than 1,000 soldiers within a mile of headquarters, and before those stationed in the field could reach here great damage could be done. General Miles, as if impressed by this fact, has extended the breastworks around the school, which will command a larger extent of the friendlies' camp. It is learned that General Miles' move to extend breastworks around the school-house frustrated a plan of attack on the agency. The plan was to have the Indian pupils, at a signal, overpower their teachers, whereupon the hostiles, aided by the friendlies, were to break in upon the agency at that point. The story is well authenticated and was given to General Miles' attention. He has taken the precaution to guard against the attack.

It has been discovered that Phillip Schwenky, of Krop, a recruit from Jefferson barracks, whose home was in Newark, N. J., was killed at Wounded Knee. Red Cloud says there are 100 wounded Indians among the hostiles, whom Little Wound wants to send to the agency. General Miles has placed Colonel Shafter, First Infantry, in command of the troops at the agency. Sitting Bear and Long Bull have written General Miles that they purpose to come in with their followers and be good Indians.

General Miles says: "At last accounts the Indians were fighting among themselves, the camp was a pandemonium and there was no leader among the hostiles. The desperadoes were destroying their own people. If the Indians who belong to this agency come in, the others, the General thinks, will endeavor to get back to their own reservations. The hostile element, he says, is composed of Ogalallas from the Standing Rock, Cheyenne River and Rosebud reservations. The troops on the other side are frequently skirmishing with them."

POCAHELLO, Idaho, Jan. 10.—Reports of any serious trouble or fears of an outbreak among the Indians on Fort Hall reservation surrounding this place are utterly without foundation in fact, and were started by irresponsible parties. A visit to Blackfoot, on the edge of the reservation, and at the agency itself, fails to reveal any just cause for apprehension. While the Indians have been dancing, these demonstrations partake of the same character as those held every year at this time. The Indians on the reservation are the Shoshones and Bannocks, the former being a peaceable tribe and greatly in the majority. The Bannocks are warriors, but could not muster more than seventy-five fighting men.

FURTHUR, O. T., Jan. 10.—Much excitement prevails here regarding the present Indian outbreak. Grave apprehension is felt and trouble is expected as soon as the disarming of the Indians is begun. Reports regarding the seriousness of the situation have been withheld by correspondents, but it is no longer a secret that trouble is imminent. At Kingfisher a company of minute men has been formed to suppress any outbreak.

More Money for Indian Schools.—WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—The board of Indian commissioners adjourned at a late hour Thursday night, having adopted a resolution favoring increased appropriation for Indian schools and increased efforts to induce the Indians to accept lands in severalty.

Forty People Drowned.—BERLIN, Jan. 10.—Advices from Courtaux report that while a large crowd was skating on the frozen Boden sea the ice gave way and forty people disappeared in the floods. A number of fishing boats started to the rescue but only a few could be saved.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from ten drops to a teaspoonful. It sets directly upon the blood and cleanses the entire system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address, F. J. IN CONGRESS.

Senator Blackburn Declares His Belief That the President Dare Not Veto a Free Coinage Bill.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—In the Senate Friday bills were reported appropriating $100,000 each for public buildings at Joliet, Ill., and Rockford, Ill. A bill creating the office of Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General was also reported. Petitions for and against the Conger land bill were presented. The House bill for the relief of Major Wham, army paymaster, crediting him with $28,345, Government funds of which he was robbed in Arizona in May, 1889, was reported and passed.

Conference reports on bills for public buildings at Youngstown, O., and Fort Dodge, Ia., were presented and agreed to. At 2 o'clock the finance bill was laid before the Senate. Senator Plumb (Kan.) gave notice of an amendment limiting to $1,000 the compulsory requirement of deposit of United States bonds for every National bank. This was not to apply to the deposit of bonds to secure public moneys in the National banks.

Senator Blackburn (Ky.) addressed the Senate in advocacy of the free-coinage amendment. In the course of his remarks he said the opponents of free coinage might rely on the veto power of the President, but that would prove to be a vain reliance. The President dared not furnish them with that veto. When the amendment passed the Senate and the House and the bill went to the President he would not put his veto upon it unless he was already prepared to sign the death-warrant of a party already doomed. But even if the President did veto the bill that would not save them. The death-knell of the present Congress, he thanked God, would soon be rung, and then would come another Congress whose House of Representatives would give free coinage to the American people, even by the vote required by the constitution to pass it over the President's veto, and the Senate would concur in that action of the people's representatives, so that relief to a clamoring and overburdened people was now at hand whether the opponents of free coinage willed it or not. This, with him, was not a party question, for he had denounced the anti-silver policy of every administration for the last twenty years. It did not matter to him that his own party was for four years responsible for the enduring wrong Mr. Cleveland's administration was just as amenable to criticism and censure as had been its predecessors or its successors.

The day session of the House was devoted to bills on the private calendar. At the night session a number of private pension bills were passed.

A Trust Goes Up.—CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—Owing to the anti-trust laws of several of the States the great harvesting-machine trust, known as the American Harvester Company, with its enormous capital of $35,000,000, has been dissolved. At a meeting of the directors of the company held at the offices of T. W. Warder, Bushnell & Glessner it was decided to discontinue the project. The directors representing the organization in the different States were instructed to see that the charters obtained in their respective States be surrendered.

Total Indian Population.—WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—The Census Bureau has issued a bulletin giving the population and other information of the various Indian tribes, exclusive of Alaska. The bulletin shows the total Indian population of the United States to be 244,704. This makes the total population of the country, including Alaska, estimated at 37,000,000.
